Special Notes:

My Ph.D. research explores the topic “Applied Buddhism: Reiki and the Philosophy of Alternative Modern Healing Systems in Tibet.” It delves into the profound connection between Mahāyāna Buddhist Energy Healing Meditation—specifically Reiki—and psychotherapeutic healing methods. Through this research, I tried to bridge ancient spiritual wisdom with contemporary mental health approaches, focusing on Reiki as both a meditative and therapeutic practice.

As part of my work, I offer counselling, particularly for teenagers, who are increasingly vulnerable to the pressures and stresses of today’s globalized world. This counselling is guided by the principles of mindfulness and energy healing, aiming to provide holistic support in navigating modern challenges.

My academic expertise lies in Ancient Indian Philosophy and Indian Knowledge System, enriched with a psychotherapeutic healing perspective. This unique combination allows me to weave philosophical deep insights with psychological and therapeutic practices, creating a transformative approach to mental well-being and spiritual growth.
